About the Graduate School of Humanities and Social Sciences

Contemporary society is clearly witnessing a transformation toward a knowledge-based society wherein new knowledge, information and technology provides a vital foundation for human action in various political, economic, and social arenas. Advancing globalization is stimulating an upsurge in the international mobility of people, goods and capital, and thereby further promoting the interdependence of nations. Asia is one of the most culturally and economically dynamic regions of this increasingly interdependent global society, a fact that underscores the importance of research and education on its culture and society.

The Graduate School of Humanities and Social Sciences consists of the three departments of Social and Cultural Studies, Japanese and Asian Studies, and Economic and Management Studies, which together aim to cultivate intellectual leaders for this knowledge-based global society by offering two Master's degree programs in English.

Master's Programs Overview

The university provides learning opportunities for Japanese students, international students, and working adults. Graduate students who wish to study Japanese culture and the economy of Japan and Asia in English are offered two programs entirely in English:

1. Master of Arts (MA) Program in Japanese and Asian Culture
2. Master of Economics (MEcon) Program in Japanese and Asian Economy and Management

All classwork and thesis supervision in these two programs may be conducted in English. Students wishing to begin or continue Japanese language studies after their entrance into the university are encouraged to do so. We offer both beginning and advanced Japanese language instruction, but language study is not compulsory.

The two programs offer students the options of pursuing a degree with a disciplinary focus in either the liberal arts or in economics and business, providing them with broad, in-depth study of Japanese and Asian history, culture, economy and management from a global or multi-cultural perspective. Students will enroll in either the MA or the MEcon program, depending on the focus of their research and study interests.

Students can choose classes from either program in order to obtain an interdisciplinary perspective covering both the humanities and social sciences. Students with the requisite language ability will have the option of also taking classes in Japanese.

The MA program in Japanese and Asian Culture offers students an interdisciplinary selection of classes covering Japanese history, literature, material culture, media, contemporary art, traditional performing arts, and other cultural studies topics. Thesis supervision is conducted by leading scholars with a strong Japanese focus, and the program provides successful applicants with an ideal forum through which to hone their analytical skills and enhance their ability to comprehend the multiple cultural and historical perspectives characterizing today's global society. Consequently, graduates will leave the program well-prepared to pursue their professional goals in Japan or abroad.

The MEcon program, comprised of classes on Japanese and Asian economy, society, and management, builds on the accumulated store of years of fieldwork by numerous faculty who excel in systems design and policy recommendation, and is committed to creating new socio-economic models for a sustainable Asia. Students enrolled in this program will master theories and methods useful for solving economic problems and graduate with the ability to contribute greatly to the further development of their home societies and of Asia in general.

We welcome motivated students from all over the world and look forward to your application!

Scholarships

I Government Scholarships

1. JASSO Scholarship

http://www.jasso.go.jp/en/study_j/scholarships/index.html

(1) Reservation Program for MEXT Honors Scholarship for Privately Financed International Students

Japan Student Services Organization (hereafter “JASSO”) offers the Reservation Program for MEXT Honors Scholarship for Privately Financed International Students (hereafter “Reservation Program for Honors Scholarship”) to the students who attend a university or other institution of higher education in Japan. In conjunction with this scholarship, JASSO sponsors a reservation program that sets aside scholarships for privately financed international students who enroll in a graduate school in Japan directly from overseas (i.e. applicants do not have to visit Japan before enrollment).

Privately financed international students who enroll in SU’s MA Program MEET these criteria, although the scholarship is not always guaranteed.

The Reservation Program for Honors Scholarship (graduate level) is paid monthly in the amount determined for that Japanese school year (April-March). The amount is subject to change each year. For reference, the monthly stipend for the 2021 school year was 48,000 yen.

After a scholarship has been reserved for an applicant, it is awarded for a certain period, based on the time that the applicant enrolls in a Japanese graduate school. For students enrolling in the MA Program in Oct. 2022, duration of the scholarship is 6 months. Students need to compete for the MEXT (regular) Honors Scholarships or other scholarships for privately financed international students during the subsequent period.

All applications must be processed through SU. Direct applications from students will not be accepted. The application for Reservation Program for Honors Scholarship must be made after matriculation.

[Important Points on other scholarships related to the Reservation Program for Honors Scholarship]

The Reservation Program for Honors Scholarship cannot be awarded to students scheduled to receive one of the government or non-government/private scholarships.

(2) MEXT Honors Scholarship for Privately Financed International Students

Privately financed international students studying at SU are eligible to apply for MEXT Honors Scholarship offered by JASSO. Applications for the scholarship should be made through SU. Please note that the JASSO scholarship is highly competitive.

2. MEXT Scholarship

The Japanese Government (Monbukagakusho: Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology, hereafter “MEXT”) offers scholarships and support for international travel expenses for international students who study in higher education institutions. The application procedures differ from this guideline. For more information, please see the “MEXT” website.

https://www.mext.go.jp/a_menu/koutou/ryugaku/boshu/1415352_00001.htm

3. Foreign Government Scholarships

Foreign Government Scholarships are available for those who are sent to Japan to study by the government of their home country. Please inquire at the relevant authority in your country for details.

Foreign Government Scholarship recipients will receive priority in their housing applications for the International House.

II Non-Government and Private Scholarships

Every year, approximately 30 private organizations award scholarships to students. We proactively advertise and recommend international students for these private scholarships although both the number of recipients and the amount paid are limited.

Applications to stay in the International House are accepted in July (moving in October) and January (moving in April).
